EDGE CUTTINGS STYLES

Textures available on the edge. Tumbled, Honed

Handcut

Keep it natural, cut by hand it is tapered so ideal for tiling and cobbles with rough inter tile spaces.

Straight Handcut

This is handcut edge without tapering generally used when showing the crudeness of table tops and steps.

Machine Cut / Sawn

Sawn by machine

Chamfered

Edge are angled, which makes the sharp edge smooth chamfered can be done at different angles as per requirements, for example 1mm, 2mm, 3mm, etc.

Full Bullnose

The edged is rounded corners. A perfect product for stair treads, counter tops, etc.

Half Bullnose

Half rounded edge are in between straight cut and full bull nosed edges.

1/4 Round

Minimal rounding is done to remove the sharpness of the straight edged tile.

Coping Edge

Top your wall or pool to make a statement.

Chisel

This gives the stone edge a rough yet uniform surface with chiselled texture.

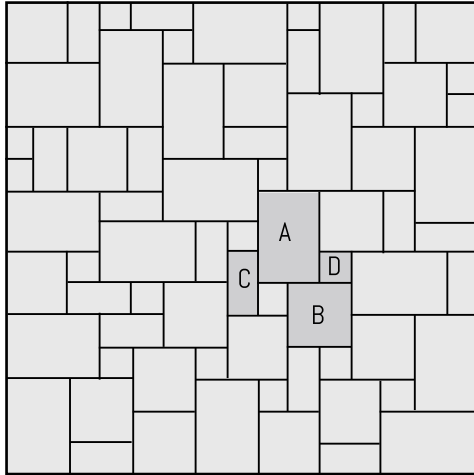

Broken (Top view)

Break free from geometry naturally broken, used for crazy paving in flooring or cladding.

TILE PATTERNS

Different tile patterns are formed with different sizes as per customer requirements. For example, an opus pattern can have sizes 60x40, 40x40, 40x19.5. Small modifications in the sizes can always be made. Completely new tile patterns can be tailor-made too.

Slate Stone Roof Tile

Stone roofing tile is a stone tile, for using in roofs. Generally tiles are placed in parallel rows, in such a manner that each row overlaps its penultimate row. These are designed for providing structural support to place, controlling water ingress, air and heat flow, and protection to beneath surface.
